CY THOMPSON SAYS...

WHAT ARE YOU WORTH?

How much money has been and must yet be invested in your education to equip you to become an efficient producer? What is the present value of your life to your estate? How can you discount the loss to your family, your creditors, and society—should you not live to produce, repay, and provide?

AS LONG AS MEN LABOR

And as long as men are mortal, Life Insurance will always be the one instrument for nullifying the constant menace of the loss of the fruits of labor through Death. Hence, nothing can disorganize or supplant it.

No substitute for Life Insurance exists—just as there is none for fire insurance. There is no equal way by which a young man can protect his creditors and those who are or may become financially dependent upon him. It has no competitor.

AMERICA'S FIRST

The NEW ENGLAND is the oldest Massachusetts company and the first old line, legal reserve mutual company chartered in this country for the purpose of insuring lives. It offers superior service. Every provision and stipulation and precaution that can be devised to safeguard this Insurance and give it the richest potency is embodied in its policy contracts.

Today while you are in sound health the opportunity is open to you. Let us help you to avail yourself of its lasting and comforting benefits. Today while you may, see us or write us.

OPINION AND COMMENT

The commencement of 1916 in the general judgment appears to have been unusually happy and successful. Judged by the superficial standard of the number of people who came to the final exercises it was the most successful commencement in many years. Memorial Hall could not hold the crowd that sought admission on Wednesday morning. The number of alumni who came back for Alumni Day on Tuesday was also surprisingly large. In spite of strenuous efforts to find out in advance how many alumni would attend the luncheon, the management was overwhelmed at the last moment, and was unable to meet the extraordinary demand. The third section of the commencement—the dancing section—was also more largely attended than usual. Swain Hall, an immense floor, and used for the first time for dances, was crowded. More important than the size of the crowd at these functions was the happy and optimistic spirit that seemed to saturate the whole affair. Everybody seemed to be having a good time, and seemed to be glad to show it.

After a hundred and twenty commencements have set the seal of tradition deep into the order of exercises, they assume an air of immutability. Change is not easy, and much should always be a few people, a few institutions and a few functions that are fixed and known quantities, and not subject to experimentation and change. A wise man would not experiment with a commencement programme any more than he would with the Ten Commandments. At least not in the essentials, nor with malice aforethought. Unusual things happen, however, in spite of all traditions and conventions, and even in commencements there is a chance for change, and for new records being made.

One record likely to be famous in Carolina annals for a hundred years to come was the 1916 commencement address. The content of the address was unusually fine; but what distinguished it supremely among a century of competitors was its brevity. So far as our researches go, we find that the long distance record for this event was established some thirty-odd years ago, and stands at three hours and twelve minutes. We have been told by a thoroughly reliable alumnus that he heard this speech for the first fifty minutes, went home and ate a hearty meal, took his customary nap, then returned to Memorial Hall and heard twenty-five minutes of eloquent peroration. This speech was pronounced "a wonderfully great commencement address, though perhaps a trifle long, in view of the other elaborate exercises." Whether this is truly the long distance record may be in dispute; but the loving cup for brevity was presented to Secretary McAdoo in 1916, for a compact, intelligent, pertinent gem of a commencement address that covered the course in eighteen minutes.

[Tip to tradition and to all aspiring orators: A good way to make a speech: make it short!]

Another pleasing feature of the 1916 commencement was furnished by General Julian S. Carr, of the class of 1866. This was the THE JULIAN S. CARR FELLOWSHIP fifty-fifth anniversary of General Carr's graduation, and he celebrated the event in a manner characteristic of his loyalty, his generosity, and his wisdom. He endowed, with a gift of four thousand dollars, the Julian S. Carr Fellowship. This fellowship is to be awarded each year to a member of the rising junior class or senior class who has shown by the high quality of his college work that he is worthy of help, and who, during these first two years, has earned his own way wholly or in large part. It is estimated that this fellowship will yield annually enough to pay all of a student's actual expenses.

The gift is wisely given, and the conditions make it certain that it will be worthily bestowed. Literally

A WISE GIFT hundreds of boys all over the State are now asking for help of any sort that will enable them to enter the University: they want scholarships, loans, jobs—anything that will give them a start. Before the new term opens there will be three hundred boys that will ask for a job waiting on a table at Swain Hall. Only forty can be accommodated. There will be two hundred asking for tuition scholarships. Practically no scholarships remain open. One hundred and fifty men who have made good in the first year or in the second year in college will drop out because of lack of funds.

Fellowships for the use of juniors and seniors, and scholarships for freshmen and sophomores are greatly needed, and can be so placed as to assure tremendously productive results.

Two of the reunion classes made gifts to the University a feature of their home coming. Nineteen eleven presented the President with OTHER GIFTS 1906-1911 a check for eight hundred and sixty dollars, and pledges for the next reunion; 1906 presented a check for one thousand dollars. Both of these gifts were turned over to the rapidly rising Alumni Loyalty Fund. The class of 1905, the originator of the plan, sent additional checks to the Treasurer, bringing its subscription to a total of nearly thirteen hundred dollars.

The class of 1916, the youngest of the alumni family, celebrated its arrival with two proposals, novel among our alumni classes. It presented the University with an endowment policy for twenty-five hundred dollars, that matures in ten years. At its tenth year reunion, it will turn over this sum to the college. In addition, each member of the class agreed to make the University a beneficiary in his will of some sum between one hundred and one million dollars. There are something less than one hundred men in the class. The idea is not that many men in the class can afford to will the whole million; but that any man in the class can afford to will a hundred. The class expressed the belief that the man of small means would gladly leave a small amount if he thought he could do any good with it. The Alumni Fund offers the way.

A man of faith in the class believes that the class can create a tradition to the effect that every Carolina man will leave the University at least one hundred dollars (through the Alumni Fund); a man of arithmetic in the class discovered that if a thousand men would leave a hundred dollars, it would mean as much in money and more in spirit than one man leaving a hundred thousand.

President Edward K. Graham has gone to Cambridge, Mass., to represent the University at the opening of the new buildings for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

When all is said and done, and with all due respect to whomever and whatever respect is due, it must be finally admitted that the real STILL MORE ABOUT 1911 feature of the 1916 commencement was the reunion of 1911. The class of 1911 admitted it before they came, and they made good on it. They took no chances on having a fine time: they brought it with 'em. For a large part of two days, they owned all of the campus and the town, including a large sized tent, a local orchestra, an unlimited amount of good humor, a miscellaneous assortment of interior and exterior decorations (including seventy-five sailor suits, red socks, etc., as per illustrations).

The whole community is indebted to 1911. It will be hard to wait five years for them to come back again.

What made the 1911 reunion a genuine success was preparedness. Every little boy in the class now knows what that means. What

NEXT YEAR: REUNION CLASSES, LOOK! it means in class reunions is that somebody has to take hold of the class organization early, write letters, form a committee on programme and organization, and see to it that the reunion will be worth coming to.

These classes are due for reunions next June: 1916, 1857, 1867, 1887, 1892, 1897, 1902, 1907, 1912.

During the summer the alumni office will get the addresses of the men in these classes, and it wants to get the active assistance of all of them in getting every man in all of them back.

All indications point to a record breaking attendance in the summer school, which opens just as this NEW STUDENTS issue goes to press, and in the regular session, which opens the second week in September. The last issue of THE REVIEW gave helpful suggestions to the alumni who know of boys who want to come to the University, but lack the means. Full information is given in that article about the help the University can offer such boys. The demand for help far exceeds our ability to meet it; three times as many worthy boys apply as can be helped. The alumni have a fine opportunity to help here.

The alumni can be of the greatest possible assistance, too, in the matter of seeing that boys in their neighborhood who are going to college get the proper sort of information about the University; and in seeing that boys of ability, who ought to go to the University, are not diverted elsewhere by some trivial inducement.

This is the last issue of THE REVIEW for the current session. We will meet you once more when 1916-17 opens. We've had a wonderfully fine year in the University, and we've tried to tell you about it, and to keep you posted on what is going on.

ABOUT THE REVIEW ITSELF

We haven't succeeded as well as we mean to succeed in making THE REVIEW reflect the life and activities of the University; but we mean to keep trying all the time to do that, and we are confident that with your continued help and co-operation we can succeed. Alumni publications sometimes do succeed; more often they fail. THE REVIEW has been greatly encouraged by two things: one is that it has paid its way on a reasonable subscription charge, and the other is that a large proportion of its subscribers have said that they like it, and get more than their money's worth. We will not be satisfied unless our subscribers do get more than they pay for. You can help THE REVIEW be what you would like it to be, in three definite ways: (1) by writing suggestions, criticisms, and brief articles of interest for it; (2) by telling other alumni about it, and telling us about them; (3) by paying your subscription—that up to this moment you may have forgotten. Au revoir.

THE BACCALAUREATE SERMON

The baccalaureate sermon, preached on Sunday, May 28, by Bishop J. H. McCoy, of Birmingham, Alabama, was the beginning of the one hundred and twenty-first commencement of the University, a commencement that was noted for the large crowds present, the enthusiasm and loyalty shown by the alumni, and the renown of the chief speakers.

Taking as his subject Saint Paul's address upon Mars Hill, Bishop McCoy preached a masterly sermon on the infinite relationships of human life. His text was: "For in him we live and move and have our being."

"It is only in the amplitude of our dwelling place, the reach of our relationships, that we measure our life," said Bishop McCoy, in beginning his sermon. Later he declared: "You have never inventoried the reach of man's relationships until you reach his spiritual relations, his religion, which brings him into contact with the divine. It looks as if we are provincials in our relations, our attachments; yet there is that strange contradiction that God has put into the heart—that longing for all spaces."

Vesper Service

On Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock a vesper service was conducted on the campus under the Davie Poplar by Rev. W. D. Moss of the Presbyterian Church of Chapel Hill. The setting was beautiful and the service inspiring. The vesper service took the place in the commencement program of the sermon before the Young Men's Christian Association, which has occupied a place in previous years.

SENIOR CLASS EXERCISES

On Monday morning, May 29th, at 10:30 o'clock Gerrard Hall held a well filled audience, which had gathered to hear the senior class day exercises. An hour before this time the seniors had marched to chapel for prayers with Dr. Kemp P. Battle, of the class of 1849. For seventy years or more, Dr. Battle has witnessed the various classes go out from the University campus into their life work. In giving advice to the seniors, Dr. Battle said:

"If you want to succeed in life, whatever you profess to do, do well. The great word upon which success depends is reliability. Get the respect and confidence of your community and then you have reliability."

Permanent Officers

Permanent officers of the class were elected as follows: President, F. F. Bradshaw, of Hillsboro; Secretary, H. B. Hester, of Hester; Treasurer, G. C. Royall, Jr., of Goldsboro. A committee on permanent organization was appointed: W. B. Umstead, of Bahama, chairman; R. B. House, of Thelma; and F. O. Clarkson, of Charlotte.

Gift Presented

The gift of the senior class to the University was presented by S. C. Pike, of Liberty. It took the form of an endowment insurance policy which will mature in ten years, the value of the policy to be $2,500.00. An annual fee of four dollars will be collected from each member of the class to secure this.

In a stirring farewell, President F. F. Bradshaw emphasized the place the University held in the minds and thoughts of the seniors, and the love and loyalty for Alma Mater which each member should keep with him. He also urged upon the class the compelling duties of citizenship ahead of them.

Mangum Medal Contest

The seniors then turned the meeting over to President Graham who presided at the Mangum Medal contest. The representatives of the class in this contest with their subjects were: W. B. Umstead, of Bahama. — "National Self-Consciousness in the United States"; F. O. Clarkson, of Charlotte,—"The Soul of Mexico"; S. C. Pike, of Liberty,—"America's Growth of Freedom." The honor of winning the medal, the announcement of which was made Wednesday morning, fell to W. B. Umstead.

Exercises Under Davie Poplar

At 5:30, under the Davie Poplar the closing exercises of the senior class were held. The exercises were presided over by the class president and were witnessed by a large assemblage. The program was as follows: class history, S. C. Pike; class statistics, W. B. Umstead; class prophecy, W. C. Rymer; last will and testament, T. C. Linn, Jr.; class poem, R. B. House. The pipe was passed around and nineteen sixteen gave place to nineteen seventeen as leaders of the campus.

ALUMNI DAY

The Alumni Returning in Large Numbers Find the Day the Biggest and Happiest Occasion in Recent University History.

Tuesday, May 30th, was Alumni Day and it was, in fact, as the alumni committee had hoped that it would be, the "biggest, happiest day of commencement." Scores of alumni returning for their various class reunions and for the other features on the program for the celebration of Alumni Day found on the "Hill" what they were looking for—many of their old comrades and friends and a real good time. No day in the recent history of the University has been so thoroughly enjoyed from first to last as this Alumni Day.

The exercises of Alumni Day were begun with the class reunions at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in Gerrard Hall, Hon. Francis D. Winston presiding in his usual happy style.

Class of 1866

General J. S. Carr was the only member of the class of 1866 present, the other living members of the class, Senator W. R. Webb, of Tennessee, and A. F. Johnson, of Clinton, being unable to attend.

He was introduced by Judge Winston as the "loyal son of the old University and devoted father of the new."

General Carr expressed the great love which he had for his alma mater, saying that the call of "Come back to Carolina" was stronger than anything which had reached him on the Pacific coast. He referred feelingly to the fact that ten diplomas from the University hung on the walls of the Carr home. He adjured the young men present that "we old alumni are committing into your hands the greatest trust in North Carolina."

Class of 1886

The class of 1886, celebrating its 30-year reunion, was back in a goodly company and in a great good humor. For this class Rev. N. H. D. Wilson, of Goldsboro, who was valedictorian upon the graduation of his class, spoke. He referred to the loyalty of the members of the class of '86 and to their accomplishments since they left the campus walls. The members of the class present on the stage were Rev. N. H. D. Wilson, Goldsboro; W. N. Everett, Rockingham; Clem G. Wright, Greensboro; Dr. L. J. Battle, Washington, D. C.; W. S. Dunston, Birmingham, Ala.; J. Bryan Grimes, Raleigh; Dr. I. H. Manning, Chapel Hill; W. H. Carroll, Burlington; R. L. Stroud, Chapel Hill; G. B. Patterson, Maxton.

Class of 1891

For an exhibition of original humor and native wit the palm of the reunion exercises must go to Senator G. H. Currie, of Clarkton, known to his classmates as "Punch," spokesman for the class of 1891. He made a ten-minute speech shot through with humor, jests, and witty comment, which brought forth thunderous applause from the audience. Members of the class of '91 present were: G. H. Currie, Clarkton; N. A. Currie, Clarkton; Dr. C. S. Mangum, Chapel Hill; Wm. J. Andrews, Raleigh; G. M. Graham, Durham; Van Wyck Hoke, Raleigh.

Class of 1896

For the class of 1896, celebrating its twentieth year anniversary, with a good delegation present and with enthusiasm, George Stephens, of Charlotte, was spokesman. He gave a brief sketch of every member present. Those present on the stage were: George Stephens, Charlotte; J. S. White, Mebane; J. H. White, Graham; F. F. Bahnsen, Winston-Salem; R. G. Allsbrook, Tarboro; W. R. Webb, Jr., Bell Buckle, Tenn.; C. R. Emery, Weldon; J. R. Craig, Gastonia; F. R. Harty, Charlotte; Ralph Van Lingham, Charlotte; R. T. Wills, Greensboro; Wescott Roberson, High Point.

Class of 1901

The class of 1901 came next. Dr. R. O. E. Davis, of Washington, D. C., presided, and E. C. Willis, of North Wilkesboro, was spokesman. Those present were: Dr. R. O. E. Davis, Washington, D. C.; E. C. Willis, North Wilkesboro; Herman Weil, Goldsboro; B. S. Skinner, Durham; J. R. Conley, Durham; W. B. Speas, Winston-Salem; Dr. J. G. Murphy, Wilmington; Dr. W. B. McNider, Chapel Hill; J. L. Harris, Raleigh; H. D. Bateman, Wilson; D. L. Sinclair, Sanford. Before leaving the "Hill," this class made definite plans for working up a big twenty-year reunion in 1921.

Class of 1906

President W. B. Love, of Monroe, had charge of the reunion exercises of the class of 1906. He presented the President of the University with a check for one thousand dollars as a gift from the class. The various members of the class present were introduced to the audience. Among those present were: W. B. Love, Monroe; John A. Parker, Charlotte; F. P. Drane, Charlotte; Dr. B. F. Royal, Morehead City; Dr. E. A. Abernethy, Chapel Hill; B. B. Blackwelder, Hickory; L. F. Abernethy, Hickory; A. H. Bahnson, Winston-Salem; F. A. Edmundson, Newland; P. E. Seagle, Raleigh; Hampden Hill, Oxford; H. C. Jones, Charlotte; S. T. Stancell, Norfolk; J. D. Proctor, Lumberton.

Class of 1911

Fifty members of the class of 1911 celebrated their reunion in great style throughout commencement but especially on Alumni Day. President W. A. Dees, of Goldsboro, presided over the exercises in Gerrard Hall. "One hundred men," Mr. Dees said, "graduated in the class of 1911, and not one has died since." Secretary I. C. Moser, of Burlington, introduced his classmates to the audience and presented the President of the University with a gift of eight hundred and sixty dollars in behalf of the class. The members present were: E. L. Williams, S. W. Thompson, Jr., E. C. Ward, W. C. George, Harry Solomon, K. B. Bailey, John Tillett, R. G. Stockton, Cyrus Thompson, Jr., Pat Deans, Edgar Turlington, R. H. Claytor, T. P. Clinton, H. A. Vogler, C. A. Vogler, E. L. Pemberton, Jr., Talbot Johnson, D. Stowe Crouse, J. P. McColloch, Jim Cheshire, Gus. Zollieoffer, Jerry Zollieoffer.

Class of 1915

The class of 1915 was represented by President R. G. Fitzgerald, of Hillsboro, as spokesman. He said that though young the class of 1915 was strong in its love for alma mater. Among the members of this class present were: R. G. Fitzgerald, Hillsboro; T. C. Boushall, Raleigh; A. H. Carr, Durham; R. E. Parker, Raleigh; Miss Rachel Lynch, Chapel Hill; Miss Alma Stone, Raleigh; W. M. Sigler, Pinners, Va.; D. L. Bell, Graham; J. S. Bryan, Scott's Hill; H. C. Conrad, Winston-Salem; E. F. Conrad, Winston-Salem; M. J. Davis, Warrenton; J. T. Day, Chapel Hill; E. D. Edgerton, Jr., Kenly; P. H. Epps, Chapel Hill; A. L. Gaither, Statesville; Wade Kornegay, Chapel Hill; F. B. McCall, Charlotte; G. A. Mebane, Jr., Greensboro; H. C. Sisk, Waco; W. P. M. Weeks, Washington, D. C.; Z. L. Whitaker, Oak Ridge; Phil Woolcott, Raleigh.

Alumni Conference—The University and Progress

At 12:30 an informal alumni conference on the topic "The University and Progress" was held. President Graham lead in the discussion of this topic. He gave a brief review of the main happenings of the University year and spoke of the serious problems confronting the University in its growth and development. He spoke of the University student as the most important person connected with the institution. Fifty per cent of the students earned fifty dollars or more towards defraying their expenses during the past college year. The University professor must be paid a higher salary, he declared. The true test of a professor's worth, he said, is productive scholarship.

President Graham discussed the question of maintenance. The point raised was: How widely serviceable, and how genuinely great, and how successful does North Carolina wish her University to become. It was more than one hundred years after the founding of the University before a building on the campus was erected entirely by the State. The University has grown far beyond her present limits of maintenance, accommodation, and physical equipment.

Alumni Association Meets

Immediately after the conference, a business meeting of the Alumni Association of the University was held. Gen. J. S. Carr, '66, of Durham, was re-elected president of the Association for the coming year, and E. R. Rankin, '13, of Chapel Hill, was elected secretary. Pledges were made amounting to about three hundred and fifty dollars to be paid on a debt incurred several years ago.

Luncheon A Big Success

The Alumni Luncheon, held in Swain Hall at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, was a splendid success.

FIRST LORDS OF THE CAMPUS DURING COMMENCEMENT—CLASS OF 1911

Covers were laid for four hundred and fifty, and the Hall was more than filled.

A spirit of good fellowship permeated the atmosphere, and the luncheon itself was one of the most elaborate ever held at the University. Something laughable was occurring from the beginning until the end. Charlotte and Greensboro engaged in heated arguments over the Mecklenburg Declaration. Mutt and Jeff were there. Black-faced performers cracked jokes on local celebrities.

The class of 1911, clad in sailor suits, fifty strong, were in evidence on almost every occasion. They gave yells and songs and did war dances continuously.

Splendid music for the luncheon, as for all of the commencement exercises, was furnished by Don Richardson's orchestra of New York City.

President Graham announced a gift of four thousand dollars from General Julian S. Carr, for a University fellowship to be given each year to some member of the junior class.

After the luncheon the married members of 1911 played a game of baseball with the unmarried and defeated them.

DI WINS DEBATE

The annual inter-society debate was won by the Di Society, represented by H. D. Sharpe and C. B. Hyatt. The representatives of the Phi Society were J. S. Stell and E. E. W. Duncan. The Phi had the affirmative and the Di the negative of the query, "Resolved, That all child labor legislation should be under federal control, constitutionality granted." Hon. G. B. Patterson, of Maxton, a member of the class of 1886, presided over the debate. S. C. Pike, of the senior class, was secretary. The judges were Dr. C. L. Raper, Prof. A. C. McIntosh, and Dr. W.

W. Pierson, Jr. The Bingham Medal was awarded to C. B. Hyatt. This medal is given each year to the best debater in the commencement debate by Hon. R. W. Bingham, '91, of Louisville, Ky., son of Col. Robert Bingham, and former mayor of Louisville.

After the debate a reception was given in the Byrum Gymnasium by the president and members of the faculty. The reception was largely attended.

1912 PLANS FOR REUNION

The class of 1912 is already making plans for its five-year reunion which will be held at commencement of 1917. It promises to have present a large crowd and to hold quite a successful reunion. The president of this class is F. B. Drane of Chena, Alaska, and the secretary is C. E. Norman, of Charleston, S. C. A reunion committee has been appointed to work in conjunction with the class officers, and this committee will have something highly interesting to say to all members of 1912 at an early date.

ALUMNI CANDIDATES FOR STATE OFFICES

The following alumni of the University were nominated in the Democratic primaries on June 3rd for places of importance in the State government:

Governor, T. W. Bickett, Law '93, of Louisburg; Lieutenant Governor, O. Max Gardner, Law '07, of Shelly; Secretary of State, J. Bryan Grimes, of Raleigh, renominated; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. J. Y. Joyner, of Raleigh, renominated.

A second primary over the nomination for attorney general will perhaps be held between J. S. Manning, '79, of Raleigh, and Edmund Jones, '68, of Lenoir.

Prof. G. M. McKie, associate professor of public speaking, is teaching in the Harvard Summer School.

COMMENCEMENT DAY

Secretary William G. McAdoo Discusses the Significance of a Pan-American Policy, and One Hundred and Fifteen Degrees are Conferred.

After the rain of the preceding day, the perfect weather of Wednesday was happy augury for the commencement celebration. At eleven o'clock, the academic procession, to the music of Don Richardson's orchestra, marched from the Alumni Building to Memorial Hall—the brilliant and variegated colors of the academic gowns and hoods shining resplendent in the brilliant sunlight.

Following the prayer by the Rev. W. S. Long, President Graham introduced, to perhaps the largest audience that ever assembled in the building, the speaker of the day, the Honorable William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the U. S. Treasury. The subject of the address, peculiarly appropriate at this moment in American history, was "The Significance of a Pan-American Policy." The address, which was read from manuscript and consumed in the reading only eighteen minutes, carried with it the authority of one who has recently visited South America as the official representative of this government; who is devoting his best efforts to promoting better trade facilities for North and South America; and who, a little while ago, presided over the great Pan-American Conference of Bankers at Washington City.

The speaker clearly pointed out that whatever the theorist may say as to the danger to Latin-America from the Monroe Doctrine, certain it is that the countries of Latin-America have now achieved a distinct position in the world's affairs. In regard to the attitude of the United States toward her sister republics, the speaker stated that no doubt remains, in the Latin-American world, that the United States has sought to treat all the governments of America on a basis of equality and co-operation. Not content with this traditional policy, we have gone still further to give solemn expression of it all to the entire world. "Under the lofty leadership of a man, endowed not only with serene vision of the historian intimately acquainted with the forces that have shaped our development, but with combinations of well-balanced judgments and creative statesmanship, we have determined to enter into a solemn pact with all the Republics of America, for the mutual guaranty of the integrity of all."

In describing the Pan-American Financial Conference of 1915, which he himself acting for the United States had called, Mr. McAdoo stated that this and the recent sessions of the international high commission "have demonstrated the ability and the willingness of the people of the American continent to assist one another in the development of their marvelous natural resources." And in conclusion, the speaker impressively said: "I am most anxious that you should see the full significance of this movement. It means that the Americas are sounding a new note in international policy; that they have not only begun to see but are acting upon the principle that the welfare of each depends upon the prosperity of all. It is your duty as well as mine to hold high and unassailable this new concept of international relation. By so doing we will be performing a service to our own country, to the American continent, and to the civilized world."

Medals, Prizes and Fellowships

The following medals, prizes, and fellowships were announced:

The William Cain Prize in Mathematics, C. S. Harris.

The Eben Alexander Prize in Greek, J. M. Gwynn.

The Early English Text Society Prize, E. W. Turlington.

The Henry R. Bryan Prize in Law, R. H. Shuford.

Prizes in North Carolina Colonial History, first, S. J. Ervin, Jr.; second, F. H. Cooper.

The Callaghan Scholarship Prize in Law, E. G. Mick.

Degrees in Course

Degrees were conferred in course as follows:

Bachelors of Arts—Joseph Henry Allred, Andrew Vane Anderson, Benjamin Franklin Auld, Herbert Victor Bailey, Hoke Barrymore Black, James Corrano Blaine, Hubert Morse Blalock, Luther Avon Blue, Jr., Edwin Browning Borden, Jr., Francis Foster Bradshaw, Allen Thurman Castelloe, Francis Osborne Clarkson, William Borden Cobb, Frank Hodges Cooper, George Herman Cooper, Rush Floyd Crouse, Charles Rufus Daniel, Douglas Beaman Darden, Fred Hyams Deaton, Charles Nelson Dobbins, John Overton Dysart, Lee Henry Edwards, Graham Burwell Egerton, Leslie James Farmer, Walter Leon Goldston, Jr., Seddon Goode, Jr., James Archibald Hardison, Jr., Joseph Johnson Harris, James Leftwich Harrison, Emory Cline Herman, Hugh Bryan Hester, Samuel Huntington Hobbs, Jr., Ernest Glen Hogan, Curtis Avent Holland, Robert Burton House, Hinton Gardner Hudson, Wade Russell Hunter, John Manning Huske, Herman Jernigan, Herschel Vespa-sian Johnson, John Haywood Jones, Edward Gray Joyner, John Archelaus Kent, William Wilson Kirk, McDaniel Lewis, Thomas Calvin Linn, Jr., Giles Mebane Long, Vann Ward McGhee, Luther Grier Marsh, Harry Miller, James Roy Moore, Carlyle Morris, Frank Wisconsin Norris, Robert Newton Page, Jr., John Merrel Parker, William Edward Pell, Samuel Clark Pike, William Barney Pitts, William Isaac Proctor, Marius Emmett Robinson, Jr., George Claiborne Royall, Jr., Beverly Sampson Royster, Jr., William Cecil Rymer, Jacob Philip Shrago, Norman Clifford Shuford, Roger Shore Siddall, Hubert McCree Smith, William Oliver Smith, Adam Treadwell Thorp, William Bradley Umstead, Eleanor Watson, Robert Henry Winborne Weleh, Jr., Fred Philips Wood.

Bachelors of Science in Chemical Engineering—Lucius Coleman Hall, Oscar Asa Pickett.

Bachelors of Science in Civil Engineering—Clyde Lathrop Fore, Roy McRae Homewood, Hazel Patterson.

Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering—Floyd Howard Elsom, William Henry Joyner, George Wallace Smith, William Capehart Walker, Marshall McDairmid Williams, Jr.

Bachelors of Science in Medicine—James Gillespie Dickson, William Henry Harrell, Julian Alison Moore, Daniel Reyner, John Moorhaj Tamraz.

Bachelors of Laws—Benjamin Franklin Ayeock, Marvin Key Blount, Paris Cleveland Gardner, Julian Gilliam Hart, Oscar Leach, Ernest Grant Mick, Walter Bryan Rouse, Richard Harvey Shuford, Henry Clay Turner.

Bachelor of Arts and Laws—Robert Thomas Bryan, Jr.

Graduates in Pharmacy—Alman Byron Butler, Clarence Mason Miller, Roger Derrick Sanford, Jesse Eli Turlington, William Winston Wiggins.

Doctor of Pharmacy—Arthur Levi Fischel.

Masters of Arts—Hubert Walter Collins, Martin Jones Davis, Walter Leon Goldston, Jr., Seddon Goode, Jr., James Cunningham Harper, Edgar Long, John Riley Masterson, Walter Patten.

Master of Science—Edward Yates Keesler.

Doctors of Philosophy—Carnie Blake Carter, Victor Aldine Coulter.

Honorary Degrees

In presenting the distinguished visitor for the degree of doctor of laws, Dr. Raper, Dean of the Graduate School, said:

"Mr. President, I have the honor to present for the degree of doctor of laws, William Gibbs McAdoo, president and director of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company, which operates that remarkable system of transportation widely known as the Hudson Tube Service, connecting New York City with New Jersey; Secretary of the Treasury of the United States; member of the Federal Reserve Banking Board; distinguished for very unusual ability in the field of transportation and in the field of private and public finance."

The audience was dismissed with benediction by the Rev. W. S. Long.

LEGISLATIVE NOMINEES

Among the alumni of the University who received, in the recent primaries, nominations for membership in the General Assembly of North Carolina for 1917 were the following:

Senate.—F. C. Harding, '93, Greenville; W. N. Everett, '86, Rockingham; M. H. Allen, '06, Goldsboro; Lindsay C. Warren, '10, Washington; A. L. Bulwinkle, Law '04, Gastonia; Chase Brenizer, Law '99, Charlotte; W. D. Pollock, '85, Kinston; Stahle Linn, '07, Salisbury; J. S. McNider, '06, Hertford; W. L. Long, '09, Roanoke Rapids.

House.—Walter Murphy, '92, Salisbury; Clem G. Wright, '86, Greensboro; R. A. Doughton, '83, Sparta; T. C. Bowie, '99, Jefferson; W. A. Dees, '11, Goldsboro; Carter Dalton, '06, High Point; J. C. Galloway, '07, Grimesland; R. W. Winston, Jr., '12, Raleigh; Edgar Love, '90, Lincolnton; J. L. Roberts, '14, Reidsville; L. P. McLendon, Law '12, Durham; E. W. Pharr, Law '09, Charlotte.

NEW CAROLINA PHARMACISTS

Fourteen students in the University School of Pharmacy passed the State board in the examinations held June 6th in Raleigh. The total number to pass the board was twenty-seven. A University man, Victor K. Overman, of Elizabeth City, made the highest average of all the applicants, and so won the Bradham prize, which is given each time to the leader in the examinations by Mr. C. D. Bradham, '90, of New Bern.

The list follows:

P. M. Arps, Plymouth; A. B. Butler, Roseboro; J. N. Eubanks, Pittsboro; W. B. Gurley, Windsor; C. G. Guion, Unionville; A. E. Hayes, Granite Falls; Walter Hufham, Chadbourn; C. M. Miller, Rock Hill, S. C.; T. L. Mullen, Huntersville; V. K. Overman, Elizabeth City; R. D. Sanford, Laurinburg; B. P. Scruggs, Rutherfordton; W. W. Wiggins, Coats; Lowry R. Wilson, Gastonia.

FACULTY CHANGES

Mr. A. H. Patterson will return in the fall after a year's leave of absence and resume his duties as professor of physics and dean of the school of applied sciences in the University.

Dr. J. M. Booker, associate professor of English, has been granted a leave of absence for next year by the board of trustees. He will spend the time in study abroad.

Mr. John W. Lasley returns to the department of mathematics after a year's graduate study at Johns Hopkins University, where he held a fellowship.

Mr. E. W. Turlington, instructor in Latin the past year, becomes instructor in English for next year.

Mr. E. F. Parker, for the past four years instructor in French, resigns this position to accept an instructorship and do graduate work for the degree of Ph. D. at Harvard.

Mr. P. H. Epps, for the past year instructor in Greek, becomes instructor in both Latin and Greek.

Dr. O. P. Rein, assistant professor of German for three years, resigns this position to take up work elsewhere.

Mr. H. W. Collins, instructor in mathematics for two years, will next fall enter the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the pursuit of advanced engineering studies.

Mr. W. C. George, instructor in zoology, resigns to accept the professorship of biology at Guilford College.

Mr. Edgar Long, instructor in English the past year, returns to his post as assistant professor of English in Erskine College, Due West, S. C.

Mr. H. G. Merten, instructor in English, resigns to pursue graduate work at the University of Chicago.

PRESIDENT OF STATE ASSOCIATION

John H. Vaughan, of the class of 1904 and M. A. 1905, head of the department of History and Economics in the New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, at State College, was recently elected president of the New Mexico Educational Association. Mr. Vaughan is regarded as one of the strong school men of the Southwest.

FROM FLORIDA

Walter P. Fuller, of the class of 1915, offers as an excuse for not attending the one-year reunion of his class at commencement the following: "Born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Fuller, on June 4th, a son, Henry Walter Fuller."

1911 CELEBRATES ITS 5TH ANNIVERSARY IN MANNER BEFITTING ALMA MATER'S LARGEST GRADUATING CLASS

SUMMER SCHOOL OPENS

As THE REVIEW goes to press, the twenty-ninth session of the University Summer School for teachers is opening. The formal opening of the School is set for June 16, at which time Director W. W. Walker and Dean M. H. Stacy are scheduled to make addresses to the student body. It is estimated that the number of students to register the first week will reach 700, and that the 1,000 mark will be reached before the close of the session.

PROF. RIDDICK ELECTED PRESIDENT

Prof. Wallace C. Riddick, of the class of 1885, was on May 30th elected president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of North Carolina, at Raleigh, by the board of trustees of that institution. Prof. Riddick has been a member of the faculty of the A. and M. College continuously for the past twenty-four years. At first he taught all branches of engineering but later became head of the civil engineering department alone. For the past seven years he has also been vice-president of the college. His election has been greeted with enthusiasm by students and alumni of the A. and M. in the State.

COACHING SCHOOL

The third session of the University Coaching School will begin August 15th and continue through September 13th. The school offers opportunity to prospective college students, to complete for college entrance, courses of study for which they would otherwise not receive credit. Sophomores and Freshmen who have failed to pass college examinations will also benefit by attending the coaching school. The instruction aims at a rapid review of the subject in hand supplemented by thorough teaching of the most essential facts and principles of the subject.

The courses offered are in Latin, Greek, French, German, History, Mathematics and Physics. Information may be secured by correspondence with G. K. G. Henry, of the department of Latin, or W. W. Rankin, Jr., of the department of Mathematics.

1905 NEWS NOTES

Mr. W. T. Shore, of Charlotte, secretary of the class of 1905, sends THE REVIEW the following notes of interest.

W. C. Cathey is assistant engineer of the Southern Railway, that is, in their civil engineering department, with address at present, box 116, Barboursville, Va. He sent secretary check on his class gift.

Bill Miller, otherwise known as C. W. Miller, who did so well in the insurance business in Greensboro before he was taken sick, is now at Fort Bayard, New Mexico, care of Officers Infirmary.

Mrs. Pelton, having changed her name since at Chapel Hill by the usual feminine process to Mrs. M. S. C. Smith, is engaged in literary work in New York City, as stated in the last issue of the REVIEW, and she says: "Something, perhaps the Universality of the new name, stirred (her) to wield the pen more vigorously." She still receives royalties on the book she had published before she left the "Hill," "A Tar Heel Baron." And also, in 1910, the Chautauqua Press issued "Studies in Dickens;" in 1911 Thomas Y. Crowell Co. published her "Dickens Day by Day;" in 1912 MacMillan Co. published another book by her called the "Spirit of the French;" in 1913 the Crowell Company put out another book by her called "Twenty Centuries of Paris;" from 1909 to 1914 she was Associate Editor of the Chautauquan; and, in 1915 the New York Book Co. published her last book called "The Ethel Morton Books."

THE UNIVERSITY IN LETTERS

R. O. EVERETT AND BRUCE CRAVEN,—“Federal Income Tax.” Edwards & Broughton Printing Co., Raleigh, N. C. 1916.

The purpose in view in the preparation of this book, as explained in the Introduction, has been “to reduce the requirements of the new law to plain language so that any one by reading it may clearly grasp it and know his rights as well as his duties under the law.” This purpose has been carried out by the authors, by giving an analysis of the statute and an explanation of the various subjects to be affected by it. The statute is given in full, together with regulations and special rulings by the Treasury Department, followed by the Brushaber Case constructing the statute and the Sixteenth Amendment; and also by the prescribed forms for returns, and statistics showing receipts under the law.

Mr. Everett is a member of the Durham Bar, and an alumnus of the University, class of 1903. Mr. Craven is a member of the bar at Trinity, N. C.

CAIN, WILLIAM—“Earth Pressure, Retaining Walls and Bins.” John Wiley and Sons, New York. 1916.

The theory of earth pressure as developed by Poncelet, Weyrauch, and others after Coulomb's “sliding wedge” hypothesis for the computation of earth thrust against a wall, and also Rankine's notable theory of earth pressure, have all neglected the effect of cohesion which certainly exists for ordinary more or less compacted clayey earth, the material usually met with in practice. Theory has assumed the earth to be in all cases a perfectly granular mass similar to clean dry sand, endowed with friction but entirely devoid of cohesion. This is far from the characteristics of compacted clay which may even possess sufficient cohesion to stand alone vertically in a bank and cause no thrust at all against a wall. But cohesion is liable to be diminished by the action of moisture. This together with the fact that a large part of the cohesion in a soil when loosely deposited behind a wall is destroyed has led engineers to remain on the side of safety and not rely on any cohesion whatsoever. This large factor of safety, however, is unscientific and uneconomical for many cases where the clay back of the wall is always compacted and drained.

Professor Cain's book is the first and only treatise in English that gives the theory of coherent earth. This is a distinctive contribution to the literature of engineering and it seems to be the last word that needs to be said in connection with the theory of earth pressure. There yet remains to be established more accurate and reliable data on the co-efficient of cohesion for different earths, and these are now being determined by the United States Bureau of Standards in response to a plea by Professor Cain for such a series of tests. This book should bring about a more rational design of retaining walls and lead to a more intelligent treatment of such important problems as pressures in foundations, bracing of trenches, pressure in tunnel linings, etc.

This book contains 297 pages, 6 x 9; 99 figures and several valuable tables. There are six chapters and also an appendix containing two parts.

Chapter I gives clearly the laws of friction and cohesion as applied to earth, tables of experimental data, and a thorough discussion as to the direction and distribution of stress.

In Chapter II, for earth devoid of cohesion, complete graphical methods are given; in Chapter III, formulas are derived and further graphical methods are established; in Chapter IV is given the complete design of a number of retaining walls of masonry or reinforced concrete of a variety of types, and a number of tables are added for the ready use of constructors.

In Chapter V the subjects of earth pressures in coherent earth, stable slopes, foundations, the thrust against a retaining wall, the bracing of trenches and the pressures on tunnel linings are treated in great detail.

The theory of bins is given in Chapter VI, and the attempt is made there to reach fairly good results on the subject of the thrusts on the walls of shallow bins filled with coal, etc.

The case of stresses in wedge-shaped reinforced concrete beams, which exist in the toes, heels and counterforts of reinforced concrete retaining walls, finds approximate solutions in Appendix I, where a number of diagrams are given to facilitate computations.

Professor Cain's book is comprehensive and notable because of the original matter which it contains and the clearness of presentation. It is particularly useful to students and of real value to the designer.

POPULAR POST-GRADUATE WORK

A novel experiment in University extension work begins in Raleigh next week when there will be given here the first of a series of lectures and clinics by Dr. Lewis Webb Hill, of Harvard University, expert on children's diseases, to a special class of local doctors. The following day he will give the same instruction in Halifax county, going afterwards to Edgecombe, Wilson, Wayne, and Johnston, returning to Raleigh the beginning of the following week and continuing to make the rounds until the summer course is completed in seventeen weeks. By this method the practicing physicians in the section mentioned will be enabled to obtain for an expenditure of $30 post-graduate instruction from a recognized expert that will interfere but slightly with their work, that they could have otherwise received only by a trip North involving a number of weeks' time and several hundred dollars expense.

This plan, which was worked out by Dr. Rankin of the Board of Health in consultation with other physicians and with the University authorities, is in operation in no other State in the Union. Yet its proposal has met with such an enthusiastic reception that there are already several other sections being arranged among State physicians, which will be supplied with lecturers as needed, and which may take up the line of work desired by the doctors themselves. With the extension of the plan, it should be possible in a few years for the progressive physician to keep abreast with the latest practice in departments that are now given very largely to specialists and without interruption of his home duties.

The medical profession is that one which is subject to most constant shift and change in method, the precedents in which soonest grow old, in which learning is least conclusive. As in the case of diseases of children, there are many of its branches which can be mastered only by the special post-graduate work and clinics which but a small proportion of its members have heretofore been able to afford. The idea of the State taking charge of this work by drawing the doctors together in co-operative effort after the manner of a farmers' institute is novel, but it looks to be sound to the core. In the beginning the plan has met with an enthusiastic reception from the profession. It is one that promises more in its quiet way and for less cost from the mass of people benefited than anything we have seen suggested in a long while.—Raleigh Times, June 2, 1916.

DR. HENDERSON MAKES ADDRESS

On May 19, as part of the official ceremonies in connection with the celebration of the one hundred and forty-first anniversary of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, an historical address was delivered by Dr. Archibald Henderson to an overflow audience in the Hall of the Chamber of Commerce, Charlotte. This address, entitled "The Revolution in North Carolina in 1775," created a profound impression. On the basis of evidence strictly contemporaneous, that is, of the month of May and the year 1775, Dr. Henderson demonstrated that the news of the Battle of Lexington reached Charlotte on May 19, 1775, new style. The significance of this historical discovery arises from the fact that, according to the evidence of the participants, it was on the day following the arrival of this news that independence was declared.

LAVENDER R. RAY

Lavender R. Ray, a member of the class of 1863, a Confederate veteran, and for many years a member of the Atlanta bar, died May 27th at his home in Atlanta following a stroke of apoplexy which came on his return from the Confederate Veterans' reunion in Birmingham. Mr. Ray was born in Newnan, Georgia, December 15, 1842, and was thus 73 years of age at the time of his death.

He was a student in the University at the outbreak of the Civil War. He enlisted in the First Georgia regiment, and served throughout the war, becoming a lieutenant in 1865. At the close of the war, Mr. Ray settled as a lawyer in Atlanta, where he had lived since. He served at various times as a member both of the house and senate of the Georgia legislature. At commencement of 1911, the University conferred upon him, with others of his class, the A. B. degree.

Dr. Chas. R. Turner, '95, is a dentist in Philadelphia and a member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania.

IN CHINA

Quentin Gregory, a native of Halifax and a member of the Class of 1902, is manager of the northern division of the British American Tobacco Company in China. His headquarters are at Tientsin.

MEDICAL MEN RANK HIGH AT PENNSYLVANIA

The first three places in the advanced standing list at the University of Pennsylvania went to Vann, Royster, and Pate, former students of the University Medical School. The record of Carolina men at Pennsylvania has been consistently of this same high sort.

DR. DAVIS IN CHARGE INVESTIGATION WORK

Dr. R. O. E. Davis, of the Class of 1901, is in charge of physical investigation for the Bureau of Soils, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. He spent January and February last in California investigating the possibility of obtaining potash from kelp. As a result of his findings the manufacture of potash from kelp has since been commenced on an extensive scale in several Pacific coast states.

MADDRY GOES TO TEXAS

Rev. Chas. E. Maddry, a member of the class of 1903, for the past several years pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, Raleigh, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Baptist Church of the University of Texas, at Austin, and has taken up his work there. Mr. Maddry won the Mangum medal in 1903. He has been very successful in the Baptist ministry and was regarded as one of the strongest preachers in the Baptist State Convention.

PROFESSOR OF CHURCH HISTORY

Wallace Eugene Rollins, a native of Asheville and a member of the class of 1892, is now professor of Church History at the Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, Va.

WHITAKER GENERAL MANAGER

DeBerniere Whitaker, a member of the class of 1891, for some time vice-president and general manager of the Juragua Iron Company of Santiago de Cuba, has been appointed general manager also of the Spanish American Iron Co. at the same place. These two companies own 67 per cent of the 3,245 million tons of visible iron ore reserves in Cuba and ship about eight-ninths of the annual production of the island.

BALTIMORE ALUMNI NOTES

F. B. Daney, '81, is manager of the northern division of the F. S. Royster Guano Co., Baltimore.

W. L. Swink, '04, is a lawyer with offices in the Munsey Building.

Alumni Loyalty Fund

"One for all, and all for one"

THE MONTH'S MAIL

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS FROM ALUMNI

"I will be one of five hundred to give $500 at any time before 1920."—D. B. W.

"The alumni as a whole are very enthusiastic over this plan and it will only be a matter of a few years before the fund will amount to a sum which will be of great benefit to the University. I wish I were in a position to give ten times the amount of my pledge."—T. D. V.

"I believe you will meet with splendid response and it gives me great pleasure to contribute my little mite—$50."—W. S. D., '86.

"What grateful son of the University has not dreamed through the years of the day he would bequeath to it a legacy worthy of its worth to him?"—C. G. F., '88.

"A gratifying opportunity to express the appreciation that every alumnus must feel in return for the help and inspiration which the institution has been to him."—T. B. F.

"This idea will concentrate and intensify our interest in the growth of the University and our knowledge of its affairs."—H. B. G.

"I heartily thank you for giving me the chance to express in this small way the deep affection I have for the University and the sense of gratitude I shall always have."—R. M. H.

"I feel indebted to you for having provided the opportunity whereby we may all help in the wonderful work the University is doing."—S. L.

"I wish I could make it a million. I believe this is the greatest all-round movement as far as the mass of the alumni are concerned, because nobody is debarred from lending aid."—S. E. M.

"An excellent plan and one welcomed by every alumnus."—T. S. P.

"I enclose my check and will be glad when I am in position to show my full interest and faith in the great work the University is doing."—R. G. S.

"I hope I may show more nearly the great love and gratitude that I have for my Alma Mater."—H. M. S.

"It gives me a tremendous thrill thus to keep in touch with the abounding life of the University."—H. C. S.

Can you afford not to be in this? Of course you will eventually; but why not now?

CY THOMPSON SAYS...

WHAT ARE YOU WORTH?

How much money has been and must yet be invested in your education to equip you to become an efficient producer? What is the present value of your life to your estate? How can you discount the loss to your family, your creditors, and society—should you not live to produce, repay, and provide?

AS LONG AS MEN LABOR

And as long as men are mortal, Life Insurance will always be the one instrument for nullifying the constant menace of the loss of the fruits of labor through Death. Hence, nothing can disorganize or supplant it.

No substitute for Life Insurance exists—just as there is none for fire insurance. There is no equal way by which a young man can protect his creditors and those who are or may become financially dependent upon him. It has no competitor.

AMERICA'S FIRST

The NEW ENGLAND is the oldest Massachusetts company and the first old line, legal reserve mutual company chartered in this country for the purpose of insuring lives. It offers superior service. Every provision and stipulation and precaution that can be devised to safeguard this Insurance and give it the richest potency is embodied in its policy contracts.

Today while you are in sound health the opportunity is open to you. Let us help you to avail yourself of its lasting and comforting benefits. Today while you may, see us or write us.
